Students to Benefit from 96 Scholarships

Scholarship funds administered by the Community Foundation of Shelby County will award 96 scholarships this spring with a total value of over $105,000. An additional 14 scholarship renewals will also be available to some students who received a scholarship last year.

“Forty-four scholarship funds will provide awards to high school seniors or alumni,” said Marian Spicer, Foundation executive director. “Several individuals, families and civic groups are giving students an opportunity to better afford a college education.”

Some scholarships are for students graduating from a particular high school and others are county wide. Certain scholarships are for students majoring in a variety of medical, education or fine art fields.

For the first time, the Community Foundation’s application will be online. Students may access the application by going to the Foundation’s newly revised website at www.commfoun.com and going to the ‘Receive’ menu where ‘Scholarships’ is the appropriate menu item. Applicants may select from a menu of applications or the General Combined Application. As in the past, scholarships are arranged by school district, enabling a student to review eligibility requirements for several scholarships and to apply using one combined form.

“We highly recommend students begin compiling their transcript, EFC number and recommendation letters now, even though applications for most high school senior scholarships are not due until March 22,” noted Spicer. “The online application can be started and then completed in future sessions, but incomplete applications will be rejected if not finished by the deadline.”
